

Contents • Inhalt

Johanna Laakso:

- In place of an introduction: a linguist's reflections on the concept of “minority literature” ..... 6

Kristina Malmio:

- Finland-Swedish minority literature: social, economic, cultural and literary aspects ..... 29

Satu Gröndahl:

- Minority literature as an emancipatory force: The development of Tornedalian and Sweden-Finnish literature ..... 48

Antje Wischmann:

- Re-Appropriation auf Augenhöhe? Inszenierte ‚Minoritätssprache‘ am
Beispiel von Romani ..... 77

Zoltán Beck:

- Possible ways of discourse: Notes on the process of name-giving to Romani Studies ..... 105

Károly Kókai:

- Literatur der ungarischen Migration in Österreich in den 2010er
Jahren ..... 113

Tuulikki Kurki:

- Minority literature in the Russian borderlands: Finnish-language literature in Russian Karelia ..... 139

Karina Lukin:

- Soviet voices in Nenets literature ..... 168

- About the authors ..... 194

About the authors

Dr. Zoltán Beck (beckzoli@gmail.com) is Senior Lecturer at the Department of Romology and Educational Sociology, at the University of Pécs, where he also leads the ZEN (Zenélő Egyetem – University of Music) initiative. In his research, he has dealt with ethnic horizons of literature, especially from the point of view of contemporary Roma literature and arts. He is also the lead singer, guitarist, and award-winning songwriter of the alternative rock band 30Y.

Dr. Satu Gröndahl (satu.grondahl@moderna.uu.se) works as lecturer at the Department of Modern Languages at the University of Uppsala, and as researcher at the interdisciplinary Hugo Valentin Centre. Her research interests include Finnish and Sweden-Finnish migrant literature, minority literatures in the Nordic countries, intersectionality, and the relationship of society and literature.

Dr. Károly Kókai (karoly.kokai@univie.ac.at) unterrichtet in der Abteilung Finno-Ugristik des Instituts für Europäische und vergleichende Sprach- und Literaturwissenschaft der Universität Wien. Zu seinen Forschungsinteressen gehören die Kulturgeschichte der Migration und die Avantgarden von Mitteleuropa.

Dr. Tuulikki Kurki (tuulikki.kurki@uef.fi) works as a Senior Researcher in cultural studies in the Karelian Institute, University of Eastern Finland. Her recent research has focused on Finnish-language literature in Russian Karelia, literature and culture in borderlands, border and mobility related traumas in literature as well as border crossing experiences of mobile people.

Prof. Dr. Johanna Laakso (johanna.laakso@univie.ac.at) holds since 2000 the chair of Finno-Ugric studies at the University of Vienna. Her research interests include historical-comparative linguistics, especially the history of Uralic morphology and derivation, language contact studies, minority language studies and gender linguistics.

Dr. Karina Lukin (karina.lukin@helsinki.fi) is a post-doctoral research fellow of Folklore Studies at the University of Helsinki. Her research focuses on the Nenets, particularly Nenets folklore, but also on their literature and research history. She is mainly interested in the ways folklore is constructed as a resource for representations in different contexts and media.

Dr. Kristina Malmio (kristina.malmio@helsinki.fi) is Adjunct Professor and University Lecturer in Nordic Literature at the Department of Finnish, Finno-Ugrian and Scandinavian Studies at the University of Helsinki, Finland. Her main interests of research are Finland-Swedish literature, modern and postmodern literature, literary spatiality, and sociology of literature.

Prof. Dr. Antje Wischmann ist Professorin für Literatur- und Kulturwissenschaft an der Abteilung für Skandinavistik des Instituts für Europäische und Vergleichende Sprach- und Literaturwissenschaft der Universität Wien. Zu ihren Forschungsschwerpunkten gehören die skandinavische Literatur vom 19. bis zum 21. Jahrhundert, kulturwissenschaftlich und linguistisch erweiterte Zugänge in der Literaturwissenschaft, Räumlichkeit von Literatur, Mobilität, Utopien und Dystopien.